Hey everyone who feels like a worm sandwich well I do! Today in class we are eating worm sandwiches or were they really worm sandwiches? DUN DUN DUUUN!!! Here is the full story.

In class we wrote a letter to our letter to our parents saying if you wanted to eat the worm sandwiches you would ask for permission to eat them and tell them about the book we are reading (How to Eat Fried Worms.) The people who did not want to eat the worms just told them about the book we are reading and about what is happening to the people who are eating the worm sandwiches.

So today in class was the big day. Everyone was nervous but I find that strange because I felt fine! I mean a little worm sandwich cannot hurt or were they worm sandwiches? DUN DUN DUUUN! Ok now everyone was squirming with excitement. Now I was a tiny bit nervous! Now was time (finally). Mrs Frankel started putting blindfolds on us and handed out napkins and then plopped a sandwich in our hands. She said “3,2,1 GO!” Then we all took a big bite. EWW! YUK! EEK! Canned spaghetti! BLAUGHGJKL. I don’t even know if that is a word and it was cold BLAUGHLER! I don’t even know if that is a word either. We took our blindfolds off or we all laughed!

I had a fun time.

Some people were about to eat slimy, wriggly worms. I could not believe they were eating worm sandwiches. I felt very excited. As soon as I saw them take a bite of the worm sandwich I felt that I could not stop laughing because their faces were so disgusted. When they finished we all clapped.

For them I felt amazed!

I couldn’t wait to see the look on their faces when they ate those slimy, wriggling worm sandwiches. I didn’t think they would eat them but they did. Finally they finished eating the worm sandwiches and unblindfolded themselves then Mrs F said they were only spaghetti with cheese and tomato sauce.

I was shaking to the point I couldn’t shake any more. I could smell the worms in that sandwich. I was thinking over and over again, “Do I really want to do this?” I was feeling so nervous then Mrs Frankel said, “You can eat them!” Then all of the sudden I took one big mouthful out of the sandwich. I felt like was going to throw up. Then another big bite right in the middle of it then one more and done. I had finished the sandwich and I took off my blind fold and it was spaghetti. It was a good experience.

WORMS?!
I am going to eat a worm today.

Once I eat it I’ll shout hooray!

I am going to eat it quick and fast.

I will save the tail for last.

Besides, how can one little worm hurt us?

Oh look here it comes.

According to plan…

It’s about to go on my tongue.

Mrs F shouts, “Eat!”

Wait a minute - this tastes like meat!

She says, “Take off the blind fold now.”

I look down. HOLY COW!

It’s spaghetti on cheese.

Oh jeez! :)    Connor
I watched my class eat worm sandwiches.

On Wednesday most of my class ate worm sandwiches.

I thought to myself, “Those don’t look like worms to me!” I was confused.

“That’s spaghetti!”

It was the greatest moment of my life. I was watching someone get touched by eating WORM SANDWICHES. They took their first bite. Even watching I felt sick. They were blindfolded. Christian was the first person to eat his sandwich.

Luca

Are they really eating worm sandwiches? I thought this was really exciting to see people eat worm sandwiches. I hope one of them ate it all so I watched some of it. At the end I saw someone eat all of the sandwich. I couldn’t believe it that someone really ate it but it was just pasta. Jamie S
Slimy wiggly worms dangling out of the sandwich about to go into my mouth.

Gooey, yucky, disgusting! That’s what I thought about when I bit into the sandwich. We were blind - folded.

“YUCK!” I said when I bit into the sandwich but then on the second bite I thought, “That tastes like pasta!!”  Lily S

I’m going to spew. I’m just about to eat wriggly worms. Are they going to kill me? I’m really worried. They look really slimy. I was right when I said I was going to spit it out. HERE WE GO... luckily I did not ‘you know what’. It would go all over the classroom. You know it would be really hard to clean up. They taste really slimy. They were actually just canned spaghetti. What a relief. I’m not going to die after all.

I was really excited! I watched their faces as they got their blind folds on. I still can’t believe I didn’t bring the note. Mrs Frankel handed out the worm sandwiches to the ‘eating’ group but it wasn’t worms - it was tin spaghetti! The ‘eating’ group were making such a big deal out of it! The thought of eating worms was certainly getting to them! Seeing their faces when eating the sandwiches was really funny. I can’t wait for the activities for the books we read in the future!

Yuck!

I felt nervous to eat worm sandwiches.

On Wednesday 4f ate worm sandwiches

I did not like them at all.

At the end I found out that it was spaghetti.

She’s about to take off the foil and half the class is blind folded.

There they are. Wait a minute. “That’s pasta!” I thought to myself. Ok everyone you can start eating now. When some people took the first bite the word that came to everyone’s mind was yuck. A few minutes went by and Mrs Frankel said, “Everyone, take off your blind folds”. Everyone saw that it was pasta and that’s what happened when we ate worm sandwiches.

Some people in 4F including me all ate worm sandwiches. We all thought it was really disgusting. I was sitting next to Connor who stuffed the sandwich into his face: I think he liked it. I finished the worm sandwich and thought it was truly disgusting and then needed to go to the toilet. When I came back our teacher said it was only tinned spaghetti. We could not see because we had blind folds on!

Arthur

Today I ate a worm sandwich. They didn’t taste nice. There was pasta in it. I was blind folded. It was fun for a moment. But it got to dark. I got a little scared. Everybody got scared. The audience was screaming. Well not screaming - squealing sort of. Squealing! I hated it.

Edward
I can’t see with this blind fold on. Everyone was shouting. We were going to eat worms with Mrs Cukier. I was holding a sandwich with slimy, wiggly worms in it above my head. I wasn’t sure whether I should eat it or not. I eventually decided to drop it into my mouth. I chewed and chewed. It tasted familiar. When I took the blind fold off I realised it was canned spaghetti.

At the beginning I felt like butterflies in my tummy, crocodiles snapping and the sun was burning in my tummy. I was so scared when I actually thought that we were going to eat fried or boiled worm sandwiches. When we (well half of the class) were going to eat the worms, Mrs Frankel put a type of material on our eyes so half of the class couldn’t see the terrifying worms! When I ate a little nibble of the worms it was really gooey and it tasted kind of yucky and then I had another (but a bit of a bigger nibble and I really liked the worms a lot (but it was spaghetti) but I just don’t like the pasta in the sandwich.

Isabella

I felt excited, worried, and slimy. I just ate WORM SANDWICHES with the class. We were blind folded eating worm sandwiches - well that’s what I thought.

Last week we wrote a letter to our parents about a book we read called “How to Eat Fried Worms.” That’s why we ate the worm sandwiches. After we took our blind folds off it we saw that it was canned pasta in white bread. So Mrs Frankel tricked us.

Lulu

One word YUK! I cannot believe we’re eating WORM SANDWICHES!!! I am not so sure if there is something to trick us. All I was thinking is WORMS, worms, worms and Mrs Frankel started to tie a blind fold on to me and I sat down with it on and Mrs Frankel handed me a napkin and finally the sandwiches. I took my first bite and it tasted like spaghetti so I quickly ate the rest of the sandwich and took the blind fold off and not to my surprise it was spaghetti. I asked Mrs Frankel if I could have another one. It was the best day EVER.
